

FOR SPONSORS AND PARTNERS

Join us in building the speaker team

Ådience gives venues their own speaker team — a voice that follows the audience through the whole experience, not just before kickoff. Investing in this team means investing in something that lasts longer than one match: competence, culture, and a better experience for everyone who comes back.

What your contribution goes to

Competence — training in audio technique, commentary, and delivery for the speaker team.

Course and certification — structured course modules with questions and a personal certificate, plus a physical ARENA course where a producer and lead speaker train the team through the actual scenarios of matchday — filmed and evaluated, up to an official ARENA team certificate.

Active planning — preparation and content tailored to each event, not improvisation.

Developing the experience — continuous improvement of how the audience experiences the venue through sound.

Visibility through the QR code

Ådience's QR code is visible wherever guests go — at the entrance, on signage, in the programme, on the big screen, and on social media. As a partner, your logo and message can be linked to this visibility, match after match.

Why it matters

A good speaker team builds something the audience remembers and comes back for. This isn't a one-time investment in technical equipment — it's an investment in people, and in the culture that makes the venue a place people want to be. We're building a shared culture — continuously, match after match, season after season.

As a partner, you become a visible part of this effort — linked directly to the voice the audience hears throughout the experience at the venue.

Get in touch

Want to help build our speaker team? Get in touch with the venue's management, or contact Ådience directly at post@adience.no.