

FOR THOSE WORKING AT THE VENUE

You create the experience.

Ådience gives you a new tool to make it even better — and safer.

Why this matters

An audience that's engaged, informed, and has something to listen to is a calmer audience. Ådience gives visitors exclusive commentary and information straight to their ear — synchronized with what's happening, with no delay. It makes the experience better for guests, and it makes your job easier: an audience that knows what's happening, and why, asks fewer questions and is easier to guide.

Your role

Mention it. A simple "did you know you can listen to exclusive commentary in the Ådience app?" is enough to start the experience for a guest.

Point to the QR code — everywhere. Ådience's QR code should be visible wherever guests go: at the entrance, on seat signage, in the programme, on the big screen between periods, and on social media ahead of matchday. The more places guests see it, the more join in.

Be the point of trust. Ådience requires neither login nor personal information from the audience — it's safe to recommend, with no follow-up needed from you.

Speak up. If you see something that isn't working for guests — technical or practical — your feedback is what makes the experience better next time.

Your venue's speaker team has completed Ådience's certification course — trained in audio technique, audience engagement, and safety. They know exactly what they're doing during a broadcast.

Good to know

<0.5 sec

delay between the pitch and the ear

No login

for the audience — just geofence and QR

Free

for guests to download and use the app

Thank you for helping raise the experience for the audience — you're the most important part of why it works.